

THE CRISP EPISODE

What the Speaker Has to Say About That Snub*

He Denies Leaving the Banquet Hall in Disgust.

His Friends Furious Over the Reform Club Incident.

It Is Expected to Precipitate the Fight Between the Two Factions of the Democratic Party for the Speakership.

Ex-Teleg. to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—[By the Associated Press.] Speaker Crisp is back in Washington. He is not inclined to freely discuss for publication some incidents connected with the Reform Club banquet. In reply to questions from an Associated Press reporter, he said: "To begin with, the press of the country is resting under a misapprehension so far as regards the fact that I was invited to speak at the banquet. I was not invited to speak, but armed myself in advance in case I should be called upon. It is true I gave out to the press associations in advance the remarks I intended to make, should I be called upon to say a few words. It is not true that I left the banquet hall in a disgruntled condition and did not return as published. I left my seat temporarily to look after my clothes in the cloakroom. This task completed, I returned to the banquet hall and was one of the last to leave it."

"As regards the so-called 'snub' to me, as has been charged, I do not care to discuss the subject for publication, nor do I care at this time to discuss the statements by some persons that Cleveland in his remarks fired the opening gun in a war that is to be waged against my relection to the Speaker's chair should I be a candidate before the Fifty-third Congress."

On his return being called to the fact that his friends expressed indignation at what they conceived to be an intended slight, he said that it was a matter of too delicate a nature to discuss in the public prints.

New York, Dec. 11.—Nothing in a long time has created so much gossip among New York politicians as the speech Speaker Crisp did not deliver at the club last night. Anderson, president of the Reform Club, said: "I am extremely sorry that Speaker Crisp feels offended. I would like to find out how he got the impression he was one of the speakers." He talked with members of the committee and they are silent. Certainly no courtesy was intended. Crisp's name was not on the list of speakers, and there is no reason why he should be asked to speak at the reform dinner. It is not unusual that Crisp should not be asked for an address. The Reform Club stands for a certain thing in the party policy which Crisp does not represent."

Speaker Crisp's friends who remained in the city are furious at the incident in which he figured, and at what they call the "cold-blooded" way in which members of the Reform Club talked about it. Just before Speaker Crisp left the Hoffman House for the Madison Square Assembly Saturday night he was asked a half dozen questions and he procured. The Speaker replied that he was not certain he would be called upon, but if he was the Associated Press would furnish a copy. Mr. Barrett, the Speaker's secretary, meeting some one connected with the Dinner Committee earlier in the evening, was anxious to learn whether the Speaker would be asked to make an address. He found no one who could tell him, and the Speaker had to go to the dinner ignorant whether he would be a speaker or simply a listener.

The whole subject of the dinner has greatly stirred up the Reform Club. There are rumors that dissatisfaction in the Reform Club will make itself manifest at the approaching club election. A quiet movement is on foot to prevent the reelection of Anderson as president. Most Democratic representatives think that the Crisp incident at the Reform dinner will precipitate the Speakership contest and that hostilities between the two wings of the party will immediately begin.

* CONGRESSIONAL FORECAST.

The House Expected to Dispose of Appropriations Rapidly.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—[By the Associated Press.] Rarely any legislation of practical importance is achieved in Congress before the new year, and this session is not likely to prove exceptional. In both houses work is progressing in a manner that indicates lack of real earnestness. The prominent feature of this week's proceedings is likely to be the Anti-option Bill in the Senate and appropriation bills in the House. During the morning hour in the Senate tomorrow Senator Mitchell will discuss the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing for the election of Senators by the votes of the qualified electors of the States.

In the House the debate will begin on the Army Appropriation Bill. The bill, in the aggregate, shows a reduction from the total amount for the current year, but there are several increases in appropriations under the head of "Department of Ordnance." The Appropriations Committee expects to report the Fortification Bill in time for it to be taken up as soon as the Army Bill is passed. It is believed that the District of Columbia Bill will be reported to the House the latter part of the week. Estimates for deficiencies have been received, and will be embodied in the Urgent Deficiency Bill to be reported to the House, and be taken up almost immediately. Other bills under discussion to temporarily give way. The purpose of the managers in the House is to get all these bills over to the Senate before the holiday recess. The accomplishment of this purpose largely depends on the temper of the House, which, if in a mood, can protract consideration of the bills over several weeks.

Chairman Outhwaite, of the House Military Committee, has prepared a report and submission to the House with the Army Appropriation Bill, agreed upon by the committees. The report states sufficiently and clearly the reasons for the changes made by the committee in the number of paragraphs, as compared with the bill for the current fiscal year. Substantially, the only increased appropriation carried in the bill is for the Bureau of Ordnance, and the reasons therefor are stated quite fully, with quotations from the testimony of Gen. Flagler before the committee.

SPORTING NEWS.

Observations on the Morris-Quirk Foot-race.

It May Have Been Straight, but Looks Suspicious.

The Recent Meeting of the League of American Wheelmen.

Success of Winter Racing in California, as Shown by the Blood-horse Meeting—the Sword Champion—Ship—General Notes.

The defeat of James Quirk, the Canadian champion, by the Santa Ana sprinter, Tom Morris, which occurred on Saturday afternoon last, is looked upon with considerable suspicion by the sporting fraternity, and though the race may have been as fair and square as has ever been run, there are several circumstances which tend to confirm the doubts of the unbelievers. In the first place, it is a fact much to be regretted that professional sprinters, as a class, are by no means above reproach, for the annals of the cinder path team with examples of their treachery, and to such extent have races been thrown that at the present day no branch of sport is held in such low esteem by lovers of genuine sport as the foot-racing. The second fact is that every event which is actuated by the desire to run to win, professionals usually adopt methods which, though really as fair for one as for the other, appear suspicious of themselves. Take, for instance, the circumstances under which the recent race was held. Morris, an obscure rancher's son at Santa Ana, inserted a challenge in an Eastern paper offering to run against Quirk for any amount of money. Quirk immediately hunted up backers and came out here with them to take up the gage. Nothing is heard from either side for several weeks, until suddenly the announcement is made that a match at seventy-five yards has been arranged for $10,000, the race to be run on Saturday, December 10. Quirk upon his arrival in this city, accounted for his defeat by Morris at Albuquerque some months ago by claiming that he was lame, and to all with whom he came in contact he expressed confidence in his ability to turn the tables. On account of this and the fact that he held the world's record for the distance, 7½ seconds, the Canadian was constituted favorite before the race at 15 to 10. By agreement the men started by mutual consent, and Morris, after allowing Quirk to break away once or twice, got off in the lead and won the race by a couple of feet. Quirk and his backer protested, but upon the grounds no one seemed to know, and after Morris had announced his decision, the Canadian paid a glowing tribute to the victor by saying that he was the fastest man on earth, and left the scene. Before the race the arrangement was made between the men that Morris should get away in the lead, Quirk apparently believing that he could beat his opponent out.

Now all this may have been done in good faith on the part of either or both of the men, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that their methods look peculiar, and they alone are to blame if the public regards them in an unfavorable light.

As there is every probability that both men will be heard of in the near future, a few words as to their respective records may be of interest at this juncture.

TOM MORRIS was born at El Monte, in this country, on November 18, 1865. His first performance in public was in the fall of 1889, when a youth named Forrest Grover bantered him into a 100-yard race at the Santa Ana track, which resulted in his covering the distance in the surprising time of 10½ seconds from a flying start, the boys starting hand-in-hand twenty yards behind the mark, and breaking away on each side of the starter. He was subsequently taken in hand by Dick Covington at Long Beach, and, although he still worked as a farm laborer, Morris trained hard in his spare moments. His first professional race was with Jim Campbell, from whom he won a small purse with the greatest of ease. He then made a match with Bob White of San Diego for $500, and beat his opponent by fourteen feet. A youth named Jackson was his next victim, the purse at stake being $300. Then he commenced to soar at higher game, and W. E. Trine of San Francisco came down to San Bernardino, to meet him for a $1000 purse, but Morris was equal to the occasion and won a very close race in 9½ seconds. In June, 1891, he won another $1000 purse from Dobbins in 10 seconds flat. Then Quirk heard of him and a 75-yards race for $4000 was arranged between them at Albuquerque, N. M., on September 16 last, the Canadian being beaten out. February, and I need at least six weeks to get in trim, or in case of injury I may receive in the Eastern combat."

The Trusts Are Still Serene.

It is understood, of course, that the incoming Democratic administration is down on American trusts, and that, with the abrogation of the protective tariff, it proposes to wipe them off the face of the earth. This is well. But, somehow, the most unlimited confidence does not seem to be felt that the Democracy is going to keep all of its promises. Conceding, for the sake of argument, that the prosperity, and even the very existence, of the trusts hangs upon the protective tariff, there now seems to be a lurking doubt whether the Democrats will address themselves to tariff reform with much ardor.

If the manipulators of these trusts are good judges of Democratic human nature their conduct is not reassuring to those people who want to see the gigantic monopolies smashed. Not one of the trusts seems disposed to imitate Capt. Scott's coon and come down before the shooting begins.

On the contrary, several of them which thought it worth while to pretend to be dead before the election, are now as lively as any bloodsucker on earth.

The glass trust, that about a year ago retired from public gaze and had its own obituary published, "because it could not live under the enforcement of the Republican anti-trust law," is all at once found to be in the land of the living yet. It was suffering only from suspended animation. Then there is the barbed wire trust, bristling with jagged points, that nobody wants to rub up against, and the National Cordage Trust, spinning its hempen web all over the country; and the sugar trust, that wants the bounties on domestic sugar removed and the old-time discriminating duties restored; and the anthracite coal trust, as impudent, aggressive as mad as a hornet.

A GREAT spread was made by Los Angeles advertisers in the columns of THE TIMES yesterday. The classified line advertising exceeded the highest watermark in the history of the paper. The number of columns in this class was nearly seventeen, and the total number of separate notices reached the unprecedented figure of 774. The aggregate volume of advertising of all classes in yesterday's issue exceeded sixty-one columns. These are unmistakable signs of business life and activity in Los Angeles.

A KIDLING doctor in Chicago went out to the pesthouse to investigate the smallpox and caught it. Now he is looking into the "pitiful" thing's diagnosis at his leisure and in the seclusion of his apartment.

Cleveland is a man of strong individuality and untempered resentments. Now that he feels himself well settled in the saddle, he will not hesitate about "pushing things." Crisp is the first upon whom the mark of his displeasure has fallen. The gloved hand of steel will fall upon several other Democrats between now and the 4th of March, if we are any judge of the man who wears a twenty-inch collar.

The Silver Statue.

The war of the actresses over Montana's silver statue, which is to permanently exemplify the figure of Ada Rehan, promises to wax very interesting, if not absolutely exciting. The charming Ada has at last spoken, and she resents with dignity the imputation that she paid $10,000, or any other sum, for the privilege of posing in silver for all the world to gaze at and admire. This gives the very opportunity which they have been waiting for to Lillian Russell, Fanny Davenport, Marie Tempest, Cora Tanner and Jessie Bartlett Davis, and they rise up with great accord and proclaim that the same honor was tendered to each of them with the promise of a $10,000 fee. Thus the conflict of the professional beauties rages. While "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," it has a lot of angry little devils that are ever ready to inspire a beautiful woman who has been piqued. Before they get through with this little squabble they will all get some advertising out of it, and perhaps Chicago will have several "competitive" silver statues of Justice as mad as a hornet.

The manipulators of these trusts are good judges of Democratic human nature their conduct is not reassuring to those people who want to see the gigantic monopolies smashed. Not one of the trusts seems disposed to imitate Capt. Scott's coon and come down before the shooting begins.

AMUSEMENTS.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

ATTRACTION TONIGHT.—Schilling's minstrels will be at the Grand Operahouse tonight. The company is said to have been strengthened greatly since it was last seen here, and the press along its line of march says it is quite the best troupe of minstrel and specialty performers on the road. The sales for tonight are large.

STEPHEN FOR SENATOR.

The country press of California are almost unanimously in favor of Stephen M. White for United States Senator. We believe so, too.—[Anaheim Journal.]

The ground will be popular sentiment for Mr. White will sweep everything before it. Make a note of this and see if the prediction does not come true.—[Stockton Mail.]

If the Democrats are spoiling to get at these fellows and drive them out of business, the trusts seem to be serenely oblivious to their danger. They are just swarming to the surface and giving the new administration every opportunity to note them well before making the onslaught.

If the tariff is not reformed during the next four years, and the trusts go on multiplying and waxing fat, how will the Democratic party square itself with the country when the next quadrennial settlement comes round?

OFFICE-HOLDERS IN POLITICS.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, discussing "Office-holders and Elections," brings out in a mild form some very pertinent truths, which, we think, are destined to be more openly recognized in American politics hereafter than they have been in the past. It says:

A great body of office-holders working for one party is an embarrassment to it. The prejudice the people have against their interference and influence falls upon the party which they support. This was well demonstrated in the last election. The office-holders in Chicago were nearly all Republicans. They worked their appointment to the Federal, State and municipal administrations, all of which were Republicans. They worked for their party as earnestly and as honestly as other partisans, but because they were office-holders, and in a manner dependent on the administration in power, there were thousands of voters ready to look upon them as a bread-and-butter brigade, whose political enthusiasm was of a lower order than that of the average citizen. . . . The public will ever look with suspicion upon the political enthusiasm and the party zeal of the men who are in office. This is an embarrassment to the party they support. They were an embarrassment to President Harrison and to Gov. Pifer, both in the nominating conventions and at the election. . . . The influence of the office-holders was, as nothing in determining results. The same was true of Mr. Cleveland in 1888. The office-holders were for him, but he was defeated.

All of which is as true as gospel. And if the Democrats bring a horde of office-holders into their next national convention, to exercise a strong influence on the nomination, they will find themselves handicapped by it when it comes before the people. The American public has come to look with suspicion upon a bureaucracy of place-holders numbering 60,000 postmasters and perhaps twice as many other Federal officials, who are held together by selfish interests, and who try to act in the double capacity of moulding politics and enjoying the proceeds. We hope to see the civil service rules so amended some day that a Federal office-holder will be debarred from taking an active part in a national campaign, at least.

CLEVELAND'S RESENTMENTS.

The snub which Speaker Crisp received at the big dinner of Democratic high muck-a-mucks in New York city is not calculated to promote lasting peace and good fellowship among that guild.

And we will just remark on the side, that Speaker Crisp was not very adroit in withdrawing from the banquet in high dudgeon because he was not called upon to speak. If he had sat it out with Spartan fortitude, though the fox of offended dignity was tearing away at his vitals, the affront would not have been so manifest to the country. There seems to be no question that a cold and studied slight was intended by the managers of the banquet, and we will wager dollars to doughnuts that Cleveland knew all about it beforehand and sanctioned it, even if he did not instigate it.

The Wasp of Saturday last prints an immensely clever cartoon apropos of the Senatorial situation. The contestants are represented as engaged in a mounted tug-of-war contest. On one noble steed Foote, Lynch and Bill English are pitted against "Our Steve." The cartoonist represents the trio's horse as being pulled to his haunches. English has been tipped over to the far side with nothing but his feet showing above the horse's back. Lynch is lying down on the animal's neck, hanging onto his mane and leaking great drops of sweat; while Foote is keeping over backward, with his mouth open, from which, presumably, issues a yell of "baffled rage and despair." Meanwhile Stephen M. is walking off toward the Capitol at Washington, which looms up in the distance, amid the whoops of the assembled multitude, which is gleefully looking on at the contest. The Wasp has just about got onto the size of it.

The Oakland Times-prints an editorial advocating the election of W. W. Foote to the Senate and incidentally attacking Stephen M. White. What the article lacks in breadth it makes up in length. The burden of the song is that Mr. White should not have the place because Mr. Foote wants it. No doubt this is a satisfactory reason to Mr. Foote, but it will hardly go down with the people at large.

We are told that the demand for Mr. White's election comes exclusively from the section south of Tehachapi, or, in other words, is a sectional demand. This is interesting, the situation with a very fine aspect. The demand for Mr. White's election comes from all parts of the State, and from all conditions of men, and is voiced by at least nine-tenths of the Democratic voters. The following list shows that nearly every Democratic paper in the State outside of Oakland and San Francisco is emphatically in favor of White:

The Times makes a fling at the motives and characters of the men who are favoring Mr. White's candidacy. A comparison on this point will be of interest. Mr. White is supported by Congressmen-elect Thomas J. Geary, A. Caminetto, J. G. Maguire and Marion Cannon, and by such men as ex-Mayor Pond, A. C. Russell, Olin Wellborn, of San Diego, Harry Baldwin, John P. Irish, D. A. Ostrom, Byron Waterman, John Wise, Fred Cox, ex-Att'y.-Gen. Jo Hamilton, Russ. B. Stephens, Max Popper, J. A. Filcher, C. T. Ryland, Arthur Rodgers, E. J. Colgan, ex-Congressman Thompson, Patrick Reddy and J. F. Thompson of Eureka.

On the other hand, Mr. Foote's active support appears to come from W. D. English, Warren B. English, John M. English, all relatives, Frank J. Moffit, and Hon. Jim Budd of Stockton.

It does not appear from this showing that Mr. White has anything to fear from comparison in the number and character and geographical distribution of his supporters with those of Mr. Foote.

THE LOGICAL CANDIDATE.

[Pomona Progress.]

The Legislature of California being surely Democratic on all party questions, the election of a Democrat to succeed United States Senator Felton is a certainty. The time seems to have struck for the choice of the Hon. Stephen M. White of Los Angeles as being our next United States Senator. Now, if Stephen will be fine, always know where he is and do something, we will not draw the line on his bad politics.—Whittier Register.

There is no doubt that Stephen M. White will be the next United States Senator from California, that is, if right, integrity and intelligence count for anything.—[Boyle Heights Criterion.]

In the Senatorial race "Our Steve" is a full length ahead of Foote and Lynch, and he can come down the homestretch at his present gait will win, all the same a Democratic landslide.—[Fresno Expositor.]

Indications point to Hon. Stephen M. White of Los Angeles as being our next United States Senator. Now, if Stephen will be fine, always know where he is and do something, we will not draw the line on his bad politics.—[Stockton Mail.]

There is no doubt that Stephen M. White will be the next United States Senator from California, that is, if right, integrity and intelligence count for anything.—[Boyle Heights Criterion.]

It does not appear from this showing that Mr. White has anything to fear from comparison in the number and character and geographical distribution of his supporters with those of Mr. Foote.

THE CHURCH OF THE UNITY.

Dr. Thomson preached yesterday morning to a congregation that, as usual, filled every seat in the large edifice. His text was taken from Rev. xxvii, 12, the topic being "The Relation of Memory to the Hereafter." In a sermon on the topic, he said: "The relation of memory to the hereafter is a subject which has interested me for a long time. I have been trying to find out what it is that distinguishes the past from the future. . . .

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE.

The principal object to which Mr. Stine directed the thought of his hearers was the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which contains the "Tomb of Christ," saying:

"The reason for which we believe that this is Christ's tomb is, first, that there never was a time since Christ's advent upon the earth when there were no Christians in Jerusalem, and it is not probable that they would entirely lose sight of the resting place of the master.

On the second argument is that the Emperor Hadrian caused the Temple of Jupiter to be erected on the place where Solomon's Temple once stood, and an altar dedicated to Venus where Christ's tomb was, which was still there when Constantine the Great built the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, a part of which remains to this day. It is probable that Christ was crucified outside the walls of the holy city, and quite probable that Christ's tomb was located in that place of the Holy Sepulchre. This place of the Holy Sepulchre, was, in all probability, outside the walls of Jerusalem, when our Savior was upon the earth."

A BATTLE ROYAL.

The Angels Land Another Game from the Dukes.

The Most Exciting Contest of the Championship Series.

The Story Told by the Very Close Score of 8 to 6.

Both Pitchers Hit Hard, but Clever Fielding and Daring Work on Bases Fired Fun for the Spectators.

Seldom has a game of baseball been more replete with interesting features for the spectators, or full of excitement and hard work for the players, than was the case with yesterday's contest between Los Angeles and San José at Athletic Park. It was a battle royal from the first, and every man in both teams took an active part in bringing about the final result.

The attendance was good, much better than at the former games of this series, and the players seemed to feel the additional stimulus to good work, which comes with an increase of spectators. McCauley and De Wald were matched against each other, and as both pitchers were still somewhat lame from the effects of their hard-fought battles during the week, the game was for the most part one of hitting. The Angel twirler had a little the best of it at first, however, and the stage of the game when he began to feel his soreness is indicated in the latter part of the score by innings as given below.

McCauley and Tredway were the only men to make the home base in the first inning, and they got five balls, and allowed one double by Glenalvin, who placed the ball neatly out of reach of McVey in extreme right center.

In the fourth Lytle, Hulen and Baldwin each got singles. Brown sacrificed, and a hit by Stafford, together with an error that Unhappy Joe had already contributed, scored three men. It was in this inning also that San José got the first run, Clark walking to first, stealing second, and scoring on Tredway's error of Denny's hit.

Again in the Sixth, two of the San José teamsters—McGucken hitting a single, and Everett accepting one from Tredway, Clark then bringing both men in on a two-base hit over to left center.

In the next inning San José went to the front, getting three runs and making the score 6 to 5. De Wald opened with a double over Brown's head, and Tredway allowed Everett to take first. McGucken hit safe and reached second on Baldwin's error, the other two runners scoring. Denney then hit for three bases, but died without reaching home.

The eighth was most eventful, but in the ninth Brown tied the score again, hitting first a gift from Reitz, making the most of a passed ball and trotting home on McCauley's hit to Everett, who made a mistake by throwing the old man out at first instead of trying to head off the champion.

The tenth inning was decisive, two Angels running home on Glenalvin's base on balls, Lytle's hot liner passed De Wald and Everett, a sacrifice by Hulen and an elegantly-placed single by Kit Baldwin. The Dukes were unable to tie the score again, Clark getting the hit in the eleventh, and the game ending no other effect than to cause Peter Nabb to drop prone to the ground in preference to being hit on the body or bare hands by the hottest ball of the game.

Following is the official story of the game as furnished by the regularly employed scorer:

SEVENTH STREET.

A suggestion to Call It West Lake Avenue, and Make It a Handsome Boulevard.

"I do not own any property on Seventh street," said Maj. Bonsall, the other day, when talking of the work of widening that street, which is now going on. "But if I did, I would go in for the organization of an association or club having for its sole object the enhancement of property values along that thoroughfare. They are spending a great deal of money in widening it, and the owners of the property ought to get the full benefit of the money thus expended. There should be a unity of action on their part with reference to planting trees, etc., which cost a mere trifle. The name should also be changed to Westlake Avenue. Westlake Avenue has an agreeable and euphonious sound, and it means something. To the strangers and tourists in riding about the city, it is a great convenience to change the name, but I do not care to until it is asked for, and I have not spoken to any of the property-holders about it. It is the first through street south of the hill district, and can be made an attractive thoroughfare if there is a concert of action on the part of the holders of the property."

THE KIRMES FUND.
It Will Be Used in Promoting Industrial Education in the Schools.

A meeting of the Industrial Association was held Saturday afternoon last at the Friday Morning Club room to decide what should be done with the funds made by the Kirmess entertainment last spring.

After-statements and papers were read by several members, and a full discussion, a vote was taken. This gave the sum, $1547, by a large majority to a committee of well-known women to use in promoting industrial education in the schools of this city. Two of these, Mrs. C. L. Wills and Mrs. T. D. Stimson, have already built and established at their own expense a school on Lafayette street, corner of Jackson, where kindergarten cooking and sewing are taught.

It is proposed to employ a first-class teacher and have her instruct the girls, as many as the authorities can arrange for.

Sewing can be taught in an ordinary schoolroom, and therefore involves no outlay for additional room, at first. If possible some occupation will be arranged for the boys of the schools, at the same hours.

As the object of the committee is to prove the practicability of manual training so the girls will be given to all our public school children, who will aim to make model classes in the work undertaken, and continue said work as long and as far as the fund will permit.

The committee will consist of Mrs. Charles Ducommun, Mrs. D. G. Stephens, Mrs. Frank Gibson, Mrs. T. D. Stimson, Mrs. C. L. Wills.

SUICIDE OR MURDER.

Body of an Unknown Man Found on the Beach at Redondo.

The Condition of the Remains Such as to Render Positive Identification Almost Impossible—Some Peculiar Features.

Yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock Constable Foyer and L. C. House, Jr., of Redondo discovered the body of an unknown man on the beach about one and a half miles north of Redondo.

The body was in a bad state of decomposition, and it is impossible to identify the remains. In the right hand was a 44-calibre revolver. The pistol and hand were partly under the body, showing that the dead man must have fallen on his arm.

By his side was a small bottle about half full of whisky. On searching the pockets Constable Foyer found a 50-cent piece, a red bandana handkerchief and a razor, but no papers or anything by which the body can be identified.

The dead man has dark, curly hair, is of medium height. He wore a gray sack coat, reddish pantaloons and high red boots.

Independent of the mystery surrounding the identity of the man, is the sensational manner in which the body was found.

On Saturday last Constable Foyer was in this city on official business, when he was approached by a young man named Frank Wilkinson, who seemed to be greatly worried about something. He took the officer to one side and told him that his brother Harry made a most singular discovery on the beach a mile and a half north of Redondo five weeks ago.

He said that Harry was walking along the beach, when he noticed a man lying on the sand in a little hollow in the sand. The man was lying on his back, and there was a bottle of some kind of liquor by his side.

When asked why the affair had not been reported sooner, he said that Harry did tell several people, but all thought he was joking, and no one took the trouble to investigate. Frank Wilkinson was not made acquainted with the facts until that morning, and he at once set out to notify the officers. Had the matter been reported to the authorities at the time, the mystery might have been solved at once, for the body showed that the death had taken place only shortly before.

The boy, who is very young, was probably afraid to say anything about it, as many people have an idea that it might be suspected under such circumstances.

Constable Foyer began his search for the body, after notifying Coroner Weldon, and found it shortly after noon, as above stated. The Coroner will hold an inquest today.

The identification is not at all certain, but it is what we learned last night. The dead man is probably younger than a man named Caronis, who worked in the Redondo Hotel kitchen, and disappeared very mysteriously a day or two before young Wilkinson found the body. The height, color of the hair and its curly nature, answer the description of Caronis exactly, but as the flesh has all fallen away from the face of the corpse, it is impossible to be certain.

At any rate, Caronis disappeared about the time the unknown must have committed suicide or been murdered, and he has not been seen since from his associates in the kitchen, known to two before young Wilkinson found the body. The height, color of the hair and its curly nature, answer the description of Caronis exactly, but as the flesh has all fallen away from the face of the corpse, it is impossible to be certain.

NEW BUILDINGS.

A Permit Issued for the New Stimson Block.

The Cost of the Structure Estimated at $250,000.

Surprised at the Evidence of Growth and Prosperity on Every Side—Ahead of the North.

If there is any one species of praise upon the country's progress which the average citizen likes best to hear, and which carries with it the conviction of honest opinion and unprejudiced commendation, it is that given by a friendly neighbor in comparison of advancement and improvement. One of the first thoughts occurring to a prominent member of the Oakland committee, now visiting in this city, was the striking difference in the public buildings, population and relative wealth of this and northern cities. In conversation with a Times reporter he remarked: "Well, you people down here certainly are going far ahead of us in the matter of public improvements—particularly in that of your public grounds and structures. After hearing so much about your bursted boom and hard times, it is an agreeable surprise to come down here and find things going ahead at such rapid pace more rapidly than any other State. You seem to have almost all that could be desired—climate, water and land, having only the one possible lack of people to develop more completely the numberless resources that seem to abound. One has to look at your city and county buildings to gauge the condition of the taxpayers, and be led to the unhesitating belief that Los Angeles is the banner county in more ways than one."

It is all true, and Los Angeles people are proud of their City Hall and County Courthouse, too, even though it did cost a small mint of money, and built during the "hard times."

BUILDING NOTES.

Work of clearing the site and preparing for foundation work of the new Santa Fe depot has well begun and will go rapidly forward under an increased force of men.

A small, one-story brick block, containing three storerooms and other compartments, is being built on Broadway, just below Fifth street by an unknown real firm.

T. D. Stimson last week took out a building permit for his Third and Spring street block. The immense structure is to be six stories high and is estimated to cost $250,000.

Among the contracts let recently was one between H. W. Magee and De Huff & Robinson, contractors, for the building of a residence in Pasadena at a consideration of $1455; also one between the former and A. R. Block for the building of a second house at the same place, value $4000.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Some seventy-five people gathered at St. Vincent's Hall Saturday afternoon to enjoy the Patti Francesco concert, and for an hour and a half listened to the exquisite harmonies of Beethoven, Chopin and other masters, presented without the glare of footlights or distractions of operatic costume or surroundings. It was music, pure and simple, and as the time wore on others kept dropping in till, by the time the last number was played, the hall was comfortably filled. This is more than encouraging to the projectors of these afternoon recitals. It is flattering. Large audiences cannot be expected at once, as the character of entertainment is new to musicians and those who appreciate the soft, sweet harmonies stripped of all outward settings, than to the average opera-loving, theater-crazy crowd. It is a matter of education, and as such, this pioneer work should be patronized by those who have the real love of music in their souls.

The two leading artists were assisted by Miss Grace Millmore, vocalist; Miss Beatrix Francesco, accompanist, and Bernhardt Bierlich, cellist. The programme of seven numbers was as follows:

Trio for piano, violin and 'cello, Opus 70, No. 2, E flat major (Beethoven). I. Poco sostenuto, Allegro ma non troppo; II. Allegretto, Allegro ma non troppo; IV. Finale, Allegro.

Vocal solo, (a) "Der Agra" (Rubinstein); (b) "Die Blauen Fruehlingssagen" (Ries).

Cello solo, "Romance" (Schrub).

Piano solo, ballad in G minor (Chopin).

Violin solo, "Seventh Concerto" (Beethoven).

Vocal solo, "Sea Voyage," violin obbligato (Hauptmann).

Trio for piano, violin and 'cello, Opus 54, F major (Fesca). II. Andante; I Adagio sostenuto; Allegro con spirito.

A GREAT VIOLINIST.

The news that Berhard Mollenhauer, the famous violinist, is likely to appear here soon, will be hailed with delight by musicians. He is one of the celebrated family of Mollenhauers, born in music-mad Thuringia, near the close of the first quarter of this century, that is, his father was one of the three brothers born there. Berhard himself was born in the old free city of Hamburg, in 1850, but came to America with his parents the following year. When but 5 years old the traditional family instrument was placed in his hands, and he made such progress that at 8 years of age he appeared in public as the "wonder child." Ever since then he has been before the public. In 1865 he accompanied the lamented Gottschalk on his last American tour, with whom he was a great favorite. In 1876 he traveled with the celebrated prima donna, Mme. Anna Bishop, the greatest violinists of all time as violinist with Gilmore's orchestra. Finally he grew tired of traveling and accepted an engagement as orchestral leader in New York, where he gained distinction and found occupation for several seasons.

Negotiations are now being made to secure Mr. Mollenhauer for two concerts to take place shortly in the Los Angeles Theater. The date is not yet positively arranged.

CLIMATE BRINGS THEM.

Harry E. Reeves, the "boy soprano," formerly of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, nephew of the great English vocalist, Simms Reeves, and in recent years a distinguished baritone, after a remarkably successful career in New York, Baltimore and other Eastern cities, is compelled, for climatic reasons, to seek a home in Southern California, and will henceforth be numbered among the permanent citizens of Los Angeles.

This evening Mr. Reeves will give one of his characteristic lectures at Unity Church, under the auspices of the Unity Club. The subject is "Voice Culture, Its Teachers and Charlatans, Voice Builders and Voice Wreckers." Selections of vocal music will be rendered.

COMING CONCERTS.

The First Methodist choir and orchestra are rehearsing for a concert, to occur next Friday evening at the church on Broadway.

A concert will occur at the Central Methodist Church on Fifteenth street, near Main, next Tuesday evening. Prof. F. A. Bacon will sing. Prof. Chamberlain's banjo and other clubs will assist and Mrs. L. J. Llewellyn, the famous Welsh contralto, will give two selections. Other musicians will also participate.

Next Thursday evening at Y.M.C.A. Auditorium, Emma Stratton Bruce, assisted by Miss Bertha Penning and Miss Josephine Williams, will give a musical programme, interspersed with recitations.

The S. M. Club will discuss Schumann and his work this evening. At their next meeting, the Monday following Christmas, the very appropriate subject will be "Christmas Carols." The programme in charge of Mrs. J. D. Cole.

The East Side young people have formed an amateur opera company, and will commence rehearsals on the operetta, "Contrabandist," on Tuesday evening of next week.

REPETITION OF "DER FREISCHUTZ."

So general has been the interest aroused by the first splendid rendition of Weber's "Freischut," and so great the regret of those who were prevented from hearing it by the storm, that Herr and Mme. Rubo have decided to give another performance of the opera. The date set is Monday evening, December 19. The performance will be given at the Grand Opera House, and will, as regards scenery, chorus, orchestra and soloists, present the same features which made the original rendering so successful. The indications are that a crowded house will on this occasion reward the efforts of the talented and faithful musicians who have demonstrated once forever that it is possible to give grand opera in Los Angeles in creditable manner, if people will only work together long enough, and will recognize and submit to the leadership of such artists as Herr and Mme. Rubo. If fortune brings them into their midst, instead of resisting good musical influences and of antagonizing all efforts in a musical direction which do not emanate from their own particular clique, it is a very pleasing sign of musical progress that competent judges in our city seem to recognize a good thing in music when they hear it, and, leaving personal matters aside, are willing to give honor to whom honor belongs.

COMPLIMENTARY MUSICALE.

A musicale was given Wednesday evening by Mrs. Perry Kofod of Kenwood avenue, in honor of her friend and guest Miss Aroline B. Ellis, one of Pasadena's most talented and popular young ladies. The musical numbers were well chosen and greatly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Cogswell's artistic playing, Miss Lee's vocal solo, Miss Pierson's violin solo and Mr. Cogswell's two solos being especially pleasing.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Kofod, Miss' Ellis, Miss Moore, Rev. Dr. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Byram, Misses Mary and Little Mills, Miss Pierson, Messrs.

Y.P.S.C.E. CONCERT.

The concert at the First Baptist Church, under the auspices of the Y.P.S.C.E., which was delayed a week on account of the storm, came on last Monday evening, when the following programme was rendered:

"Star of My Heart" (L. Denza)—Miss Adele Stoneman.

Serenade (Schubert)—C. H. Merry and C. H. May.

"My Lover Will Come Today" (Reginald de Koven)—Miss Adele Stoneman.

"Telle Galop" (De Lano)—Ideal Guitar Club.

IN MEMORIAM.

The organ at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, which has been undergoing repair for four months, was rededicated last week in a service of music and song. There is a small pipe organ in the front of the organ, inscribed,

"This organ was rebuilt in 1892 from a bequest of the late Emma Abbott-Wetherell, for twenty-one years a member of this church, whose consistent Christian life, equally with her renown as an artist, sheet music upon a name deeply revered and loved by an American people."

SHARPS AND FLATS.

At the late examination at the Paris Conservatory only eleven men and twenty-four women were admitted out of 139 females and eighty-eight male applicants.

It is reported that Patti is to be invited to Paris to appear in the one-hundredth representation of Romeo et Juliette. If she accepts, she will give the Parisians a farewell series of concerts.

A disciple asked Liszt one day if he had ever experienced fear. "Never," cried the master of music; then correcting himself, said, "Yes, I have." "Dare I ask of what you were afraid?" said the pupil. "Of a coat too tight when I was playing," responded Liszt.

Miss Adele O'Melveny sang a solo yesterday morning at Immanuel Church.

PASADENA.

A Little Blow on the Anniversary of the Big Blow.

Billy Brent Passes a Lively Night at Lowe's Camp—A Belligerent Chinaman—Mrs. Morris's Funeral—Notes and Personal.

It was on the night of December 10, 1891, that the only severe windstorm in the history of Pasadena got in its work. This unpleasant event was called to mind on the first anniversary of its occurrence by a little blow Saturday night, which, however, did no damage.

The day was clear and calm during the early part of the evening there was no hint of anything unusual in the wind line, but between 10:30 and 11 o'clock the atmosphere worked itself up into quite a lively humor, and for a couple of hours it blew and blustered in truly Democratic post-election style. Shutters creaked and a good account of the people who had been blown about. Further than this, nothing unpleasant resulted in town, with the exception of a few top-heavy pepper trees that were uprooted, and one or two canvas awnings that were slightly damaged.

HIGHER UP WAS DIFFERENT.

Things were not quite so peaceful at Lowe's Camp, half way up the mountain, at the top of the hill, where a gully road allowed Billy to pass company with his mistress. Later, Billy sought refuge in the cellar of the little frame cabin which was about the only thing the wind left at camp. Mr. Brent endeavored to turn yesterday morning on a冒險 to turn out several companions to straighten things out, a job that was pretty nearly accomplished by nightime.

"KID" BAKER WHIPS A CHINAMAN.

The only exciting event that occurred in town yesterday was a lively scrapping match between a Chinaman and a young man by the name of Baker, who is known among his associates as "Kid." Baker and a number of his cronies were on Main street opposite the First National Bank building when two Chinamen passed. Baker addressed a few words to the passing Chinese, who responded with a hearty laugh and responded by hitting Baker a hard blow in the forehead with his fist. This naturally aroused Baker's ire, and he clutched the Chinaman. Together they rushed to the middle of the street, but the "Kid" succeeded in getting away before his blow was allowed Billy to pass company with his mistress. Later, Billy sought refuge in the cellar of the little frame cabin which was about the only thing the wind left at camp. Mr. Brent endeavored to turn yesterday morning on a冒險 to turn out several companions to straighten things out, a job that was pretty nearly accomplished by nightime.

AN ART RECEPTION.

Mrs. E. B. Farr's art reception will be held today and tomorrow at her studio, on South Broadway, between Main and Spring streets, and all visitors will enjoy a rare treat.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Farr, the reporter was shown through the spacious studio on Saturday, which is fitted up in exquisite taste with a wealth of artistic gems from the collection of many sources, including hundreds of hand-woven trifles to rare pieces of Mexican pottery, Indian baskets and blankets arranged in charming confusion.

The walls are lined with paintings and studies of California subjects, and which are particularly well done.

Uncle Ben Whitson, whose form and figure is familiar to everybody in Pomona and who, though somewhat advanced in years, is one of the best "hustlers" with his express wagon, sustained serious injuries.

He was driving along, when a dog ran out and frightened his horse, causing him to rear and throw Uncle Ben off his head.

The horse was caught, and Uncle Ben again attempted to drive his horse, when it ran away, throwing him out the second time, and bruising him so seriously that he had to be carried home.

His bruises are not dangerous.

William Gerhardt and his wife, both of St. Joseph, Mo., arrived in Pomona Saturday night, and will make their future home here. They are friends of C. C. and Frank Ziller.

The illustrations will increase its local interest, for they are pictures of living children, and they are admirably executed.

POMONA.

The Divisionists Wearing Their Broadest Smiles.

Since the holding of the new county convention in this place last Saturday, the divisionists have been wearing their broadest smiles, and do not try to conceal their good feelings that the convention declared in favor of county division. Many of the sanguine delegates had figured out that there would be about five to ten majority in favor of the scheme, but did not dream that the convention would declare in favor of county division by such a large majority.

A question comes up as to whether the opposition will be beaten by the action of the convention. Several of the anti-division delegates expressed themselves that if they went into the convention of course they would be bound by its action, while others said they would not. What the result of the convention's actions may be is not known in the Pomona Valley. This is what the Chicago News says of her:

"Pomona prides herself upon her beautiful, hard-kept country roads and through the thousands of acres of orange and lemon groves, which are well supplied with water, this is cheaper and more abundant here than anywhere in California. Her hotel and residences are her particular boast."

Although Pomona was not favored with a visit from the Editorial Convention, it has nevertheless come in for fair share of attention, and will be beaten by the action of the convention.

Visit the Pomona Valley is one of the finest rural avenues of houses in the state. Her hotels and residences are her particular boast."

Another question is whether the "Redlands" will be torn to pieces by the motor train passing over it. One leg was severed from the body and the other almost, and the body of the face was crushed and broken by the wheels scattered about upon the ties of the bridge. The chest was torn open and the heart lay upon the near the body. The remains thus strewn about presented a most ghastly sight.

ANOTHER GOSPEL, YET NOT ANOTHER.

The hall was filled again yesterday to hear Dr. Wells's sermon on "Unitarianism—Why?" in spite of the wind and cold. He took for his text "Another Gospel, yet not another," and explained what there is in Unitarianism that insures its becoming the leading faith in the gospel as it is to be understood.

For some days past separated married men have been greatly annoyed at receiving anonymous letters containing insulting characters through the mails, and in many instances men have received letters reflecting on their wives. The letters are evidently the work of one man. The case is now being investigated, and if the writer is discovered it will be made known.

The mass-meeting of taxayers at Armory Hall this evening in the interest of municipal reform will doubtless be largely attended. The committees, who have been at work for some days past, will present their report, and the taxers will be taken to effect for the occasion, which is of great interest in this section of the state.

A. P. Sherman met with a painful accident at the corner of Spring and First streets at 10:45 o'clock last night. He jumped from a cable car as it was around the curve, and when Sherman struck the ground his feet slipped from under him and he was caught by the car and dragged a few feet. He received an ugly cut on the right eye, the conductor and gripmen were not to blame, as he did not ask them to stop the car. The injured man was taken to the receiving hospital, where Dr. Steele fixed him up and sent him home.

BOSQUI IN TROUBLE.

Complications Growing Out of the Chinese Kidnapping Case.

The Detective Detained in San Francisco on Account of Habeas Corpus Proceedings to Secure the Woman.

Police Detective Bosqui is having considerable trouble in San Francisco over Choo Fong, the Chinese girl that she went to the Chinese Mission in that city last week.

On his way up he was intercepted at Fresno by an officer armed with a writ of habeas corpus, but the smooth French detective outwitted the valley officers and landed his prize safely in the Bay City.

Bosqui was to have started home yesterday, but the slave-owners who claim the girl at this end, and have been doing all in their power to keep her from going to the mission, caught the detective in the act of kidnapping her.

Mr. Mosgrove, was 52 years old. He came here direct from Ireland in 1860, and had lived here ever since. At first he kept a dry goods store on Third street, then a hardware store on Main street, then to Post street. Afterward he opened a cloake store on Kearny street, but in none of these ventures did he make a great success. He then entered the real estate business, and now has an office at No. 625 Market street, with his wife.

Henry Mosgrove of Los Angeles and six children, the youngest 19 years old, are the only near relatives of the deceased on this coast. His wife died about eighteen years ago.

The trial will be deferred until Henry Mosgrove arrives from Los Angeles. The deceased was a member of the Pacific Lodge of Masons and was a Knight Templar, but it is not yet decided whether or not he will be buried with Masonic honors.

The Police Department took hold of the case in the hope that they would be able to unearth the crookedness surrounding the kidnapping of the girl in the first place. That the girl was stolen by white hands is the opinion of the police of Ah. Bin, highlighting the point of view.

The alleged owners, or would-be owners, of the girl, who belong to the notorious Ah Bin, highbinder society of this city, will spend a large sum of money to get possession of her, and as they have employed lawyers, detectives and peace officers, it is more than possible that they will secure the prize in the end.

The Police Department took hold of the case in the hope that they would be able to unearth the crookedness surrounding the kidnapping of the girl in the first place. That the girl was stolen by white hands is the opinion of the police of Ah. Bin, highlighting the point of view.

The Fresno Republican has the following to say regarding Bosqui's refusal to obey the orders of the court at that place:

A gentleman of the name of Bosqui has got himself into serious trouble by disregarding an order of court. He refused to obey the requirements of a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Holmes yesterday commanding him to produce the live body of a certain Chinese woman, under arrest in his custody.

The police are returning at 10 o'clock this morning. The girl, who was arrested in Los Angeles on a warrant issued on San Francisco, and was on the way from Los Angeles to the Bay City when a Chinaman, interested in the woman, secured the services of Reel B. Terry in order to inquire into the legality of the arrest.

Mr. Terry at once procured a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Holmes, and the paper was served. Detective Bosqui when nonchalantly tried to ignore at noon the Chinaman was in charge of the detective and a lady named Seller.

When the officer asked Bosqui whether he intended to obey the writ and lay out his hands, he replied, "I do not intend to pay any attention to it."

When the officer asked Bosqui whether he gets too far off the track to return and produce the girl, he replied, "I do not intend to pay any attention to it."

Resolved, that the Alameda delegation, including the representative of the Redondo Beach company in furnishing them with so enjoyable a trip through the beautiful Redondo Valley, and extending to them such manifest consideration and bounteous entertainment, return their heartfelt thanks and the hearty endorsement of their visit to Alameda county, and assure them that their kindness has contributed much to the pleasure of this most enjoyable occasion and will be held in grateful remembrance and as a means of pleasant recollection of the Alameda boys party, among the most charming people and most hospitable hosts in California, in the banner Republican county of the State, the rich and beautiful county of Los Angeles.

In the evening the guests who remained visited the California Club, where they were further agreeably entertained for an hour or two.

MARY ALLEN WEST.

Death of the Noted Temperance Worker and Writer in Japan.

The hosts of friends of Mary Allen West here and elsewhere throughout the country, were deeply pained by the news of her sudden death in Japan, news of which was received some days ago. Yesterday the Associated Press contained an account of the funeral services at Tokyo, Japan, which were very largely attended.

Miss West passed several months here last spring and summer, and greatly endeared herself to all by her many Christian virtues.

But meager details of her death have as yet been received, but the present editor of the Union Signal, of which Miss West was associate editor, has received a cablegram that Miss West died at the residence of Mrs. Winn, at Kamazawa, probably of yellow atrophy of the liver. This information was received with much relief by the friends of the deceased, as they were glad to learn that she had not died among strangers. Mrs. Winn formerly resided at Galesburg, Miss West's birthplace, and was for many years a member of her Sunday school.
